A FLAW IN THE DESIGN:
WRITING THE LITERARY THRILLER

The Guardian calls Nathan Oates's debut novel, A Flaw in the Design, "a psychological thriller par excellence."

The novel is published by Serpent's Tail in the UK, and numerous translations are forthcoming such as Japanese, Polish, Hebrew, Romanian and Spanish. The novel has also been optioned for film by Carnival Films UK. His collection of short stories, The Empty House, won the Spokane Prize. His stories have appeared in The Missouri Review, Alaska Quarterly Review, Best American Mystery Stories, Forty Stories, and elsewhere. He has been awarded fellowships from The Writing Seminars at Johns Hopkins University, the University of Missouri, the New York State Summer Writers Institute, the Sewanee Writers' Conference, and elsewhere. He is a professor at Seton Hall University, where he teaches creative writing. He lives in Brooklyn, New York, with his family.
